It was after this tremendous expansion, but still with costly projects yet unfinished, that James McCrea came to the presidency of the Pennsylvania Railroad on January 2, 1901, ave days after the death of A. J. Cassatt. When he retires he will thus have been president of the company just two days less than six years. Under the McCrea management the Pennsylvania Railroad system increased by only 423 to 11,504 miles of line. Its gross earnings for last year amounted to $25,6351,869, or $40,452,704 more than for the final year of the Cassatt regime, while the income for payment of interest had dividends was $110,-126,685, to compare with $109,290,233. The capital stock of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is now $150,877,67, while the latest annual report showed a bonded indebtedness of $265,407,669.

His Most Striking Act.

Championship Contest.

Establishing a new world's record for speed and accuracy in typewriting, manipulating the machine at the net rate of 117 words a minute, Miss Florence E. Wilson, at the Annual Business Show in New York City last night, won the world's professional typewriting championship. The record made has astonished the entire business world. Because of the large number of typists who were known to be in practice for the event, the tests, which are helf annually, were looked forward to this year with more than usual interest on the part of the typewriter fraternity. year with more than usual interest on the part of the typewriter fraternity. The prize competed for was the inter-national trophy, contributed by all the typewriter companies. It is a silver cup properly inscribed with the world's typewriting records and valued at in charge of the judges and checkers. The contest was based on straight copying work, writing from strange matter. As five words are deducted for each error made by the machine or by the operator, the gross rate established was very much higher than the net result, and much faster than typewriting experts of a few years ago ever thought would be attained.

Typewriter contests originated in 1966, when the first one was won by Rose L. Fritz, who wrote eighty-two words a minute. The tests have been held each year, and the record has been mounting up a few words annually until it has reached its present high rate. In 1907 it was eighty-seven words, in 1919, ninety-five words; in 1910, 103 words, and in 1911, 112 words, all championships having been established on the Underwood machine.

The phenomenal rate of speed at which the champion wrote in the test can be judged by the fact that it was necessary to exceed ten strokes on the typewriter for every one of the 3,600 seconds of the hour.

Typewriter contests, the purpose of which its or raise the efficiency of type-records of the hour.

Typewriter contests, the purpose of which is to raise the efficiency of typewriter operation, are attracting added attention each year. They are now looked forward to with as much interest as any other contests for spead, and are meeting with the encouragement of the entire public.

Trading stamp concerns got the short end of a decision handed down yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which supports the opinion of the District Court at Charleston, W. Va., as well as the Supreme Court of that State, that the Commonwealth has an undisputed right to Impose upon this class of business any tax it deems wise, and even to prohibit it altogether.

The opinion is by Judge Rose and possesses wide significance. The trading stamp problem has been made the subjective of extensive legislation, and was for a long time the centre of a Section 1.
